AT THE TOBOGGAN SLIDE.

In the evening hundreds of people made their way to the toboggan slide and the chute was soon packed with merry sliders who enjoyed themselves hugely. The bright toboggan costomes made the scene a fine display of ten, coffee, etc.

J. C. Norton & Co. made a fine showing numerous, that there was scarcely room of flour on a sled-frawn by two horses.

Next was a rung with Singer sewing for the sliders but everybody was good natured and enjoyed the sport. Fireworks were sent off during the evening with

It was speedly noised in the servants' hall a. Ringwood and throughout the purish hat the young man "with a dook in the family" was paying his addresses to Trip The buller, the cook, the house keeper, and the upper housemaid at the hall thought it incumbent on hem to encourage the courtship, it would add, as Mrs. Redfern said 'a claw" to Ring wood that a daughter of the park, so to speak, should marry into the upper profe of the aristocracy. Moreover, Mr Bean fort wis much liked by the servants. He was full of anecdote, witticisma, scanda ous stories about persons of title, all of whom he knew intimately, and to the truth of, which stories he could tes

How one Lost a General

Mr Beaufort's visits to the cottage were delly, and Miss Trip wore her myr the green alternately with her sage green gowns, her first alternately with her sace ond best Mrs Redfern ordered her a third best of crushed strawberry to be got ready as quickly as the milliner could make it Crushed strawberry would crush the heart of Mr Algernon Beau fort (with a duke in the family) and bring him to the feet of Trip But, in deed, left Beaufort seemed ready to throw himself unreservedly at those pretty little feet, unbrough there by any rushed strawberry.

Howas full of civility, and overflowed with compliments which, though not original, were nevertheless acceptable Of the pracytulness of his attentions there could be no question.

One could hardly have supposed that any number of people could be deceived by the appearance and address of this man Yet Joe the miller, who saw little of him, was the only person who had any supsicion that he was not what he pretended to be It is often asserted that the im ducated are keenly alive to real gentility, and able to detect what is spurious I very much question this I believe that they are easily imposed upon by mere brag, but I am quite certain that in the semi-educated class, such as servants, who ought, more than others, to be able to distinguish between the true and the false, the faculty of so distinguishing is wholly absent. The s onately, agonized, quivering in an installing body
Trip was in her crushed strawberry gowr, in the moonlight, without a hat, the siver light on her flaxen lovely hair and her sweet face, that looked white in the moonbeams
Then suddenly Joe the miller stood be fire her and lowered his arms and held out its hands level before him, and looked her earnestly in the face. The light was not on him, his face was in shadow, but there seemed to be sparks of fire in his cres.

The girl, giddy, little able to realize the depth and intensity of his passion, the greatness of his devotion, of his readines to sacrifice himself for her, burst into a merry laugh. A quiver ran through him at the sound.

Den't be angry, loe," she said, 'I could not help it. I was thinking of something mother said of a fire balloon booked to an elephant. It can't be—no —loe, we are not a match. You know it, said so do I."

"Little Tu'epuny, said he sadly as he dropped his hands and, with bent head, turned away, 'you are right, we dere no match but I gave you the chance, knowing what must come of it to me, and you have cast it away."

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for assal catarrh must be non irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the remote scress and ulcerated surfaces. The bietory of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and plessant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.
